Searching ATLAS

Searching is by keyword or using a variety of indexes. A particularly helpful index is Scriptures (available as a tab in itself and from the Indexes tab, although note that these work differently).

A variety of limiters (full text, scholarly journal status, language, publication type, etc.) are available as well.

Advanced Search Screen

The screenshot shows the ATLA Religion Database with ATLASerials Advanced Search screen. The interface includes a top navigation bar with tabs for New Search, Publications, Scriptures, and Indexes. Below the navigation bar is a search input area with a search button and a clear button. The main section is titled 'Search Options' and contains various search modes and filters. A red box highlights the 'Limit your results' section, which includes options for Full Text, Scholarly (Peer Reviewed) Journals, Journal Title, Language, Abstract Available, Year Published from, Publication Type, and Exclude In-Process Records.
